ment.

Defini. tions.

Consequential provisions. 4. (1) Any inquiry under section 12 of the principal Act, pending immediately, before the appointed day shall, on the appointed day, terminate:

Provided that nothing contained in this sub-section shall be deemed to affect the powers of the Central Government to appoint a commission or other body to inquire into any matter to which any such inquiry is relatable.

(2) Where a commission or other body has been appointed to inquire into any matter under the proviso to sub-section (1), any information relating to any industry which has been obtained by or on behalf of the Tariff Commission for the purpose of its functions under the principal Act, may, notwithstanding anything contained in section 22 of the principal Act, be made available by the Central Government to the commission or other body aforesaid for the purpose of the relevant inquiry:

Provided that the said commission or other body shall not in turn disclose any such information unless such disclosure is made with the previous consent in writing of the owner for the time being of the industry concerned and it is necessary for the purposes of the inquiry so to do.

Provided further that nothing in this sub-section shall apply to the disclosure of any such information for the purpose of—

- (i) any legal proceeding which may be taken in pursuance of the findings of such a commission or other body, or
 - (ii) any report relating to any such proceedings.
- (3) If any person discloses any information in contravention of subsection (2), he shall be punishable on conviction with fine, which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with both.
- (4) Any thing, or any action, which ought to have been done or taken by the Tariff Commission before the appointed day with respect to the termination of service of its employees or with respect to any matter in relation thereto or arising therefrom, but not so done or taken by that Commission may, on and from the appointed day, be done or taken by the Central Government.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The object of the present Bill is to abolish the Tariff Commission which was established by the Tariff Commission Act, 1951 (50 of 1951), on the recommendation of the Second Fiscal Commission, for the examination of cases relating to protection to industries. The main functions at present performed by the Tariff Commission relate to inquiries regarding the grant of protection to indigenous industries and other matters connected with it, as also to the price fixation of particular commodities. The need for grant of protection through the mechanism of the Tariff Commission has now become redundant in view of the de facto protection that indigenous industries enjoy by virtue of the import control regulations, which is necessitated by balance of payments considerations and of the other measures taken by Government from time to time for ensuring the planned development of industries in the country. The number of price fixation inquiries entrusted to the Tariff Commission has also dwindled considerably. Since it is possible to perform the limited functions now discharged by the Tariff Commission without recourse to the Commission, it does not appear necessary to continue the same. It is, therefore, proposed to repeal the Tariff Commission Act.

Special provision as to pending cases.

- (i) if it is a petition or proceeding under the Hindu Marriage Act, then so far as may be, as if it had been originally instituted therein under the Hindu Marriage Act, as amended by this Act;
- (ii) if it is a petition or proceeding under the Special Marriage Act, then so far as may be, as if it had been originally instituted therein under the Special Marriage Act, as amended by this Act.
- (2) In every petition or proceeding to which sub-section (1) applies, the court in which the petition or proceeding is pending shall give an opportunity to the parties to amend the pleadings, in so far as such amendment is necessary to give effect to the provisions of sub-section (1), within such time as it may allow in this behalf and any such amendment may include an amendment for conversion of a petition or proceeding for judicial separation into a petition or proceeding, as the case may be, for divorce.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS

The Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 (25 of 1955), became law on the 18th May, 1955. It applies to all Hindus, Buddhists, Jainas or Sikhs. It applies also to all other persons who are not Muslims, Christians, Parsis or Jews unless they establish that they were not governed by Hindu law, custom or usage prior to the Act.

Since the passing of the Hindu Marriage Act, various suggestions for amending the same as well as the Special Marriage Act, 1954, were received from some Members of Parliament and the general public. The Special Marriage Act, 1954, being a civil law applicable to all, has necessarily to keep pace with any reform of matrimonial laws. The Law Commission was requested to examine the matter and they have presented the Fifty-ninth Report which contains their recommendations. The Bill seeks to amend both the Acts aforesaid so as to implement, with necessary modifications, the recommendations contained in that Report. The Committee on Status of Women in India have generally supported the amendments proposed by the Law Commission and suggested, inter alia, the incorporation of a suitable provision for mutual consent in the Hindu Marriage Act more or less on the lines of a provision in that behalf in section 28 of the Special Marriage Act. It is, however, felt that when once the parties have chosen to move the court for divorce by mutual consent, it is not necessary to make them wait for a further period of one year to obtain relief. This period of waiting is, therefore, proposed to be reduced from one year to six months. The Committee has further suggested that having regard to the frequent violations of the provisions of the Child Marriage Restraint Act, it is necessary to provide in the Hindu Marriage Act a suitable provision conferring the right of repudiation on girls who are subject to such marriages, whether the marriage was consummated or not. The right of repudiation is proposed to be conferred on such girls subject to their exercising the same before attaining the age of 18 years. To avoid multiplicity of litigation and consequent delay, it is also proposed to apply the amended law in relation to all pending proceedings under the relevant Acts. Notes on clauses appended to the Bill indicate the changes proposed to the statutes. objects of the legislation are mainly, (1) to liberalise the provisions relating to divorce; (2) to enable expeditious disposal of proceedings under the Act; and (3) to remove certain anomalies and handicaps that have come to light after the passing of the Acts.

The Bill seeks to achieve the above-mentioned purposes.

NEW DELIU;

H. R. GOKHALE.

The 11th March, 1976.

Notes on clauses

Clause 2.—This clause seeks to amend section 5 of the Hindu Marriage Act relating to conditions for a Hindu marriage by substituting clause (ii) thereof so as to make clear the circumstances in which unsoundness of mind, mental disorder, insanity or epilepsy shall invalidate a marriage.

Clause 3.—Sub-clause (a) seeks to insert a new Explanation in sub-section (1) of section 9 to clarify that the burden of proving reasonable excuse for withdrawing from the society shall be on the person who has withdrawn from the society of other.

Sub-clause (b) seeks to omit sub-section (2) of section 9 as it has the unintended effect of restricting the scope of defence of reasonable excuse available to the respondent.

Clause 4.—This clause seeks to substitute sub-section (1) of section 10 so as to make the grounds on which a decree for judicial separation may be passed identical to that required in respect of a decree for divorce.

Clause 5.—This clause seeks to amend section 11 relating to void marriages so as to make it clear that the petition may be presented only during the lifetime of the spouse.

Clause 6.—One of the grounds for avoiding the marriage under section 12 is "impotence at the time of the marriage". Clause (a) of sub-section (1) of section 12 is proposed to be amended so as to enable the spouse to avoid a marriage where the same has not been consummated due to the impotence of the other party.

Clause (c) of sub-section (1) of section 12 is also proposed to be amended so as to provide that "fraud" as to the nature of the ceremony of marriage as to any material fact or circumstance concerning the respondent shall constitute a ground for avoiding marriage.

Clause 7.—Sub-clause (a).—Sub-clause (1) of section 13 of the Act spells out the grounds on which a decree of divorce may be sought. One of the grounds is "living in adultery". The same is sought to be substituted so as to make it clear that a single act of voluntary sexual intercourse by either party with any person other than his or her spouse shall constitute a ground for the other party. Cruelty, and desertion (for a continuous period of not less than two years) are also sought to be included as additional grounds for divorce. The ground relating to incurable unsoundness of mind can be relied on at present only if it has been there for a continuous period of not less than three years immediately before the presentation of the petition. This requirement regarding minimum period is proposed to be dispensed with. Further, this ground does not seem to cover cases where the mental disorder (continuous or intermittent) is of such a kind and to such an extent that the petitioner cannot reasonably be expected to live with the respondent, as in the case of mental disorder, it is very difficult to predicate with certainty that it is incurable. The ground has, therefore, been suitably expanded.

Sub-clause (b).—Sub-section (1A) of section 13 provides that either party to the marriage may apply for a decree of divorce if two years or more have elapsed after a decree for judicial separation or a decree for restitution of conjugal rights without reconciliation having taken place. It is proposed to reduce the period of two years to one year.

Sub-clause (c).—New sub-clause (iii) is being inserted in sub-section (2) of section 13 so as to provide that a wife may seek divorce if a period of one year has lapsed after the passing of an order or decree awarding maintehance to the wife under the Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance Act, 1956 or under section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, and if there has not been any reconciliation during that period. Sub-clause (iv) is being inserted to the same sub-section so as to confer on girls who have been married before attaining the age of 15 years, a right of repudiation before attaining the age of 18 years.

Clause 8.—New section 13A is proposed to be inserted to provide that under certain circumstances the court may, while dealing with a petition for divorce, have a discretion to grant a decree for judicial separation instead. New section 13B seeks to provide for divorce by mutual consent.

Clause 9.—Section 14 of the Hindu Marriage Act provides that no petition for divorce shall ordinarily be presented within three years of marriage. This clause seeks to amend section 14 so as to reduce the said period from three years to one year.

Clause 10.—This clause seeks to do away with the waiting period of one year after a decree of divorce.

Clause 11.—This clause seeks to substitute section 16 so as to clarify the intention and to remove difficulties in interpretation.

Clause 12.—Section 19 of the Act provides that petition shall be presented to the district court within the limits of whose ordinary civil jurisdiction the marriage was solemnised or the husband and wife reside or last resided together. That section is sought to be substituted so as to enable the parties to institute proceedings in the court within whose ordinary original jurisdiction—

- (i) the marriage was solemnized;
- (ii) the respondent resides at the time of the presentation of the petition;
 - (iii) the parties to the marriage last resided together; or
- (iv) the petitioner resides, in a case where the respondent has not been heard of or resides outside the territories to which the Act extends.

Clause 13.—This clause seeks to amend section 20 of the Act to provide that in the case of void marriages the petition need not contain averment to the effect that there is no collusion between the parties.

Clause 14.—This clause seeks to insert new sections 21A, 21B and 21C so as to provide—-

- (i) that where proceedings seeking relief of judicial separation or divorce are filed in different courts, the court wherein the petition was earlier presented shall try and dispose of all the matters (New section 21A);
 - (ii) for expeditious disposal of proceedings (New section 21B);
- (iii) for admissibility of documents even if not duly stamped or registered (New section 21C).

Clause 15.—This clause seeks to substitute section 22 of the Act relating to conduct of proceeding in camera so as to make it obligatory in all proceedings under the Act.

Clause 16.—This clause seeks to amend section 23 so as to provide—

- (i) that in a case where the petitioner is insane or suffering from mental disorder, the question of the petitioner taking advantage of his or her own wrong or disability shall not arise and that when a divorce is sought on the ground of mutual consent, such consent has not been obtained by force, fraud or undue influence [See subclause (a)];
- (ii) that in the case of void marriages the question of collusion is not relevant [See sub-clause (a)];
- (iii) that in certain cases where the grounds relied upon are such that it does not call even for an attempted reconciliation, subsection (2) of that section shall not apply [See sub-clause (b)];
- (iv) that the court may adjourn the proceedings and refer the matter to any person to attempt reconciliation and report [See subclause (c)];
- (v) that the court shall give a copy of every decree of divorce free of cost to each of the parties.

Clause 17.—This clause seeks to insert new section 23A with a view to avoid multiplicity of proceedings. It is proposed that where a proceeding is initiated by a party on the ground of adultery, cruelty or desertion, the respondent may not only oppose the relief sought but may also make a counter-claim for any relief under the Act on that ground.

Clause 18.—This clause seeks to amend section 25 so as to clarify the intention and to eliminate difficulties in interpretation.

Clause 19.—This clause seeks to substitute section 28 to clarify the provisions relating to appeal and enforcement of decrees and orders.

Clause 20.—This clause seeks to amend clause (e) of section 2 of the Special Marriage Act so as to give a more comprehensive definition of the term "district court".

Clause 21.—This clause seeks to amend section 4 of the Special Marriage Act relating to conditions for solemnization of marriages under the Act. Clause (b) is being widened so as to make it clear that neither party shall be persons suffering from unsoundness of mind, mental disorder, insanity or epilepsy.

Clause 22.—In view of section 19 of the Act, when a Hindu, Buddhist, Sikh or Jaina marries under the Special Marriage Act, it automatically effects his severance from the family. Section 20 provides that every person whose marriage is solemnized under the Act shall have the same rights and be subject to the same disabilities in regard to the right of succession to any property of the person to whom the Caste Disabilities Removal Act, 1950 applies. Section 21 provides that succession to properties of persons marrying under the Act shall be regulated by the provisions of the Indian Succession Act. Now section 21A is proposed for providing that section 19, section 21 and such part of section 20 as creates a disability shall not apply to cases where both parties to the marriage belong to Hindu, Buddhist, Sikh or Jaina religion.

Clause 23.—This clause seeks to insert an Explanation to section 22 of the Act to clarify that the burden of proving reasonable excuse for withdrawing from the society shall be on the person who has withdrawn from the society of the other.

Clause 24.—This amendment is consequential to the insertion of new sub-section (1A) in section 27 of the Act.

Clause 25.—This clause seeks to amend section 24 relating to void marriages so as to make it clear that a petition may be presented only during the lifetime of the spouse.

Clause 26.—This clause seeks to substitute section 26 so as to clarify the intention and to remove difficulties in interpretation.

Clause 27.—Sub-section (1) of section 27 of the Act spells out the grounds on which a decree of divorce may be sought. Clause (a) of this sub-section regarding the ground of adultery is proposed to be recast to make it clear that a single act of voluntary sexual intercourse by either party with any person other than his or her spouse shall constitute a ground in favour of the other party [vide sub-clause (a)].

Clause (b) of this sub-section relating to desertion is proposed to be modified to say that desertion for a continuous period of not less than two years immediately before presentation of the petition shall constitute a ground for divorce [vide sub-clause (a)].

In clause (c) of this sub-section, the proviso is proposed to be omitted so as to eliminate the requirement that three years' imprisonment must have been undergone [vide sub-clause (b)].

Clause (e) of this sub-section provides that if a party has been incurably of unsound mind for a continuous period of not less than three years immediately preceding the presentation of the petition, the requirement regarding minimum period is proposed to be dispensed with. Further, this ground does not cover cases where the mental disorder (continuous or intermittent) is of such a kind and to such an extent that the petitioner cannot reasonably be expected to live with the respondent, as in the case of mental disorder, it is very difficult to predicate with certainty that it is incurable. This ground has, therefore, been suitably expanded. Similarly, in clauses (e) and (f) of this subsection also, the requirement of minimum period is proposed to be dispensed with [vide sub-clauses (c) and (d)].

The new Explanation, proposed to be inserted, spells out the meaning of the expression "desertion" [vide sub-clause (e)].

New sub-clause (1A) is proposed to be inserted so as to provide that the wife may also seek divorce if a period of one year has elapsed after the passing of an order or a decree awarding maintenance to the wife under the Hindu Adoptions and Maintenance Act, 1956, or in a proceeding under section 125 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973, and if there has not been any reconciliation during that period [vide sub-clause (g)].

Clause 28.—This clause seeks to insert new section 27A so as to provide that under certain circumstances the court may, while dealing with a petition for divorce, have discretion to grant a decree for judicial separation instead.

Clause 29.—Section 28 of the Act provides for divorce by mutual consent. This clause seeks to amend section 28 so as to reduce the period of waiting after presentation of a petition thereunder before making a further motion in court from one year to six months.

Clause 30.—Section 29 of the Act prohibits the filing of petition for divorce within three years of marriage except under exceptional circumstances. This clause seeks to reduce this period from three years to one year.

Clause 31.—This clause seeks to do away with the waiting period of one year after a decree of divorce.

Clause 32.—Sub-section (1) of section 31 provides that the petition shall be presented to the district court within the limits of whose jurisdiction the marriage was solemnized or the husband and wife reside or last resided together. This section is sought to be substituted so as to enable the parties to institute proceedings in the court within whose ordinary original jurisdiction—

- (i) the marriage was solemnized;
- (ii) the respondent resides at the time of the presentation of the petition;
 - (iii) the parties to the marriage last resided together; or
- (iv) the petitioner resides in a case where the respondent has not been heard of or resides outside the territories to which the Act extends.

Clause 33.—This clause seeks to substitute section 33 of the Act relating to the conduct of proceedings in camera so as to make it obligatory in all proceedings under the Act.

Clause 34.—Sub-section (2) of section 34 provides that before granting relief under this Act the court of the first instance shall make every endeavour to bring about reconciliation. It is proposed that this requirement is unnecessary in cases where grounds relied upon are such as not to call for reconciliation. The court is also being enabled to adjourn proceedings and refer the matter to any person to attempt reconciliation and report. It is also proposed to give a copy of the decree of divorce free of cost to each of the parties. The section is proposed to be amended for these purposes.

Clause 35.—Section 35 is proposed to be amended so as to provide that where a proceeding is initiated by a party on the ground of adultery, cruelty or desertion, the respondent may not only oppose the relief sought but may make a counter-claim for any relief under the Act on that ground.

Clause 36.—This clause seeks to amend section 37 of the Act (which deals with permanent alimony and maintenance) so as to clarify the intention and to eliminate difficulties in interpretation.

Clause 37.—This clause seeks to substitute section 39 to clarify the provisions relating to appeal and enforcement of decrees and orders

Clause 38.—This clause seeks to insert new sections 40A, 40B and 40C so as to provide—

- (i) that where proceedings seeking relief of judicial separation and divorce are filed in different courts, the court wherein the petition was earlier presented shall try and dispose of all the matters (New section 40A);
 - (ii) for expeditious disposal of proceedings (New section 40B);
- (iii) for admissibility of documents even if not duly stamped or registered (New section 40C).

Clause 39.—This clause seeks to provide that all petitions and proceedings under the Hindu Marriage Act and the Special Marriage Act as are pending at the commencement of the Marriage Laws (Amendment) Act, . 1976, shall be dealt with in accordance with the law as amended.

FINANCIAL MEMORANDUM

Clause 16 of the Bill which seeks to amend section 23 of the Hindu Marriage Act, 1955 and clause 34 which seeks to amend section 34 of the Special Marriage Act, 1954, inter alia, provide that in every case where a marriage is dissolved by a decree of divorce, the court passing the decree shall give a copy thereof free of cost to each of the parties. Such copies would, in most cases, be carbon copies. So far as the States are concerned, even this small expenditure will be met out of their respective Consolidated Fund. As for the Union territories, this would technically involve expenditure from the Consolidated Fund of India and such expenditure in the granting of copies in relation to Union territories cannot be properly estimated. However, the expenditure is not likely to exceed rupees two thousand per annum. There will be no non-recurring expenditure.

B. N. BANERJEE, Secretary-General.
